Winery Happenings

From the winemaker, Michelle Shafir:

We've received an amazing amount of precipitation so far this winter. Most of the annual rainfall in California comes between November and March, and as of mid-January, Napa County has received 116% of normal for the season. With high soil moisture early on, we're likely to see greater vegetative growth, as well as cluster weights and berry sizes that are larger than usual. We anticipate greater yields than we've seen the past few years. The year is still young, but I'm very optimistic for the 2023 vintage.
